About our April event...

Once again our April event was a fantastic opportunity for workshopping ideas on how to improve our businesses. Alison from Sensible Office Solutions had updates on the recent changes to bookkeeping regulations—all bookkeepers are now required to sight invoices for BAS entries, rather than just working off client bank statements. Alison provides a full administration service and is in the process of qualifying to become an accountant.

Lyn Midgley spoke about the importance of regular massage therapy and the way that the body experiences pain and learns to expect pain when it is recovering from injury. Lyn has a massage clinic in Katoomba and is about to open a second clinic in Lawson. Lyn provides a wide range of services beyond massage, including the Journey—based on Brandon Bay’s techniques, as well as essential oils for general health and wellbeing.

Elizabeth Walton spoke on social media and integrating twitter and facebook into your general marketing plans.

Who do you know who....

Do you know any women who would like to be involved? Please feel free to forward them this flyer—the only limit being this group is about women who are genuinely motivated to improve their business and network with other like minded women. Don’t forget to RSVP for catering purposes.

Women@Net@Work is the working title for a new group of women who originally met through Women With Altitude. Women With Altitude was a thriving women's business network which encouraged the sharing of ideas, experiences, knowledge and support in that unique and ego-free way that comes naturally to women. At our inaugural meeting women shared their ideas and news in such an informal, non-pushy and respectful way that it would be hard to detect that the "networking" was even taking place. That's the true beauty of the subtlety of the way women can work together. It's almost sublime. It is a dynamic that was sadly missed when Women With Altitude finished a while back. Like the phoenix rising from the ashes, we hope this new group which has arisen from that void, will build towards the beneficial qualities offered by WWA.

Join us in May at the Conservation Hut

If you or your girlfriends would like to join Women@Net@Work (a working title) for lunch at 12.30 on May 18th, 2010, please contact WhoNeedsASecretary@gmail.com to place a booking.

Meetings will be held every 4-6 weeks at 12.30 on a Tuesday at a venue in the Blue Mountains.

Invitations are extended to all women in business who wish to share business ideas over a leisurely lunch.

If you would like to contribute a motivational story to share in our newsletter, please email your copy to our editorial team.
